HC for FB affidavit on paid political content

Mumbai

The Bombay High Court Monday asked Facebook why it is reductant to strictly regulate paid political content in India when it was implementing stringent scrutiny systems in the UK and the US. Hearing a plea seeking directions to the Election Commission to prohibit individuals from posting political or poll-related advertisements or paid political content on social media platforms 48 hours before poll day, the high court directed Facebook to file an affidavit listing steps it could initiate to regulate such content, particularly ahead of the elections this ads in UK and USA then why is it reluctant to do so in India?" questioned a bench of Chief Justice Naresh Patil and Justice N M Jamdar.

The bench was hearing a Public Interest Litigation (PIL) filed by lawyer Sagar Survayanshi seeking directions to the ECI to prohibit all persons, whether politicians or private individuals, from posting advertisements related to politics or elections, or paid political content on social media platforms such as YouTube. Facebook, and Twitter, 48 hours before election day.

In the last hearing, the high court had directed the ECI (Election Commission of India) and Facebook to submit suggestions on the steps that could be taken to regulate such content.

Facebook counsel Daraius Khambatta Monday told the bench that while his client was ready to remove any objectionable paid political content from its site, the direction from the same must come from the ECI or any such authority.

"We can't implement a system of self-censorship. However, if the EC, or other authorities flag an advertisement, we are ready to take it down immediately," Khambatta said.

The petitioner, however, argued that in several western nations, if one wished to post a paid political content or advertisement, they were required to furnish a valid identity proof and a proof of residence.

The petitioner's lawyer, Abhinay Chandrachud, sought the HC's directions to Facebook to demand similar documents in India too for posting political content or advertisement.

Urban Maoist a false accusation, says Teltumbde

AGENCIES Mumbai

Dalit scholar and rights activist Anand Teltumbde, who was briefly arrested by the Pune police last week in the Elgaar Parishad case, Monday said the "Urban Maoist" was a bogev that was being raised to "silence" those who raise their voice against policies of the government.

Teltumbde, who teaches at the Goa Institute of Management, was arrested by Pune police Saturday at the Mumbai airport, despite the supreme court having granted him time till February 11 to seek anticipatory bail.

A Pune sessions court, which had Friday rejected Teltumbde's anticipatory bail application, Saturday ordered his release, saying his arrest amounted to contempt of the Supreme Court's order.
